

LEGISLATURE RESTS TILL NEXT TUESDAY

SOLONS ADJOURN TO GIVE FINANCE COMMITTEE CHANCE TO WORK.

ARE MOVING VERY FAST

Final Adjournment in Two Weeks—Re-apportionment Bill Introduced in Lower House—Name State Park.

Madison, June 16.—The legislature today adjourned until next Tuesday in order to enable the finance committee to pass on all appropriations measures by Tuesday at the latest. This, it is thought, will enable both houses to adjourn late the following week. The senate today adopted a substitute bill for the Johnson bill, already passed by the assembly, providing to name the state park in Door county, Peninsula park in place of Stephenson park. This substitute, introduced by Assemblyman Howard, provides that $25,000 donated by Senator Isaac Stephenson in return for the tract being named Stephenson park, be returned to Stephenson. If the name Peninsula park is adopted, the Johnson bill provided this amount be kept by the state.

Re-apportionment.
The republican bill for the re-apportionment of the state into assembly districts was introduced in the lower house today. The apportionment committee, composed of members of all the political parties, failed to agree on a recommendation for the measure and it was reported without recommendation. The bill provides to divide the state into 100 assembly districts. The chief changes proposed are that four counties—Rock, Sauk, Columbia and Chippewa—will each lose one assemblyman; Milwaukee county will gain two and the northern half of the state will gain representation in relation to its growth. The measure will be immediately printed for distribution and will come up for consideration next week. The senate today killed the bill to license boarding houses, lodging houses and hotels. The Gaylord (socialist) apportionment bill, apportioning the state into legislative districts, was killed in the senate today.

Eulogize Jenkins.
Both houses adopted a resolution after the death of former Congressman and Judge J. J. Jenkins, of Chippewa Falls. The resolution praises the life work of Judge Jenkins.

IRRIGATION FETTER IN CALIFORNIA

Orland, Cal., June 16.—Orland is holding a two days' carnival and jubilee to celebrate the opening of the United States government's reclamation reservoir installed here to irrigate 14,000 acres in the Orland unit district in Glenn county. The festivities were ushered in this morning with the crowning of the carnival queen, followed by a street parade and a program of speeches. Other parades, sporting contests and carnival attractions will carry the celebration over tomorrow. Many visitors are here from the surrounding country.

The great East park reservoir, in honor of the opening of which the celebration is being held, is 20 miles in circumference. The reservoir is created by a dam across Stony Creek. The dam is 240 feet long, 9 feet high and 80 feet thick at the base, and contains a total of 324,000 cubic feet of concrete. The water from the reservoir is to be distributed over 14,000 acres of land by means of a system of canals more than 100 miles in length. The entire project cost $650,000, which sum was advanced by congress.

EXPRESS BILL IS NOT TO BE PASSED BY LEGISLATURE

Decide Yesterday That It Shall Not Be Put on the Statute Books at This Session.

Madison, Wis., June 16.—The senate yesterday afternoon refused to concur in the Hurbit bill reducing express rates 20 to 25 per cent. The vote, which came after the measure had been ordered to third reading by a majority of one, was 16 to 15, and in view of the closeness of the vote reconsideration will be sought and another attempt made to push it. Senators Sanborn, Blaine and Owen argued against the bill, declaring that to go over the heads of the railroad commission, which is within three months of a decision on the subject, would constitute a repudiation of the "Wisconsin idea" of regulation by commission.

The senate voted, 14 to 13, in favor of a substitute for the Hurbit bill on the subject of guaranty of bank deposits, following the failure of the Owen bill. The Hurbit bill provides that the question of whether such a bill should be passed by the legislature shall be submitted to the people. The senate refused to concur in the assembly substitute for the senate resolution providing for a legislative committee to settle the boundary dispute between Minnesota and Wisconsin. Speaker Ingram, of Poplar county, had caused to be substituted a resolution calling upon the attorney general to defend fishermen in his district who are arrested by Minnesota game wardens for fishing on that part of "Lake" Pepin which is claimed by Minnesota as its territory. Senator Owen, whose district includes the same county, opposed the substitute, declaring that while he believed in the spirit of the measure, he thought it should be accomplished by separate resolution. Senator Linley asserted that there is need of a settlement of the dispute involving the course of the St. Louis river, at Superior, his home city. It is likely that a conference committee will try and adjust the affair.

The bill for a state board of education to have charge of the university and normal schools, composed of five members at $5,000 a year each, instead of the present honorary boards of regents, was killed by a close vote in the assembly, but the bill will be renewed next week on a motion for reconsideration.

The senate refused, after a two hours' debate, to pass the Elzka bill requiring the land commissioners to purchase 7 1/2 acres of land adjoining the state fair park. The bill had been denominated by its opponents as a "veritable steal," and the Milwaukee senators voted for it by reason of a resolution favoring the purchase adopted by various civic societies of Milwaukee. The bill would have appropriated $10,000 for the purchase of one-third of a tract that a few years ago was sold by the state for $22,000.

Republicans in the assembly yesterday afternoon acted from an impending death of the administration bill making the office of insurance commissioner appointive. They succeeded in securing postponement of final action until next Tuesday.

The session was featured by the killing of the senate measure providing for a waterways commission. The bill was drawn by Senator Bowditch of La Crosse for the purpose of reviving the office of state waterways commissioner created four years ago. It was generally understood that the former commissioner, Ray S. Reid of La Crosse, would get the $5,000 position if the assembly concurred in the bill. Assemblyman Nye, chairman of the finance committee, offered an amendment striking out the compensation feature and making the commission an honorary one. This was rejected by a small majority. The bill was then killed, only 16 votes being registered in its favor.

Among the bills passed by the assembly were: Kleaska, relating to overcrowding and to safeguards for machinery in factories.

Gaylord, creating a board of public land commissioners.

Senate Judiciary committee, relating to guessing contests and advertisements.

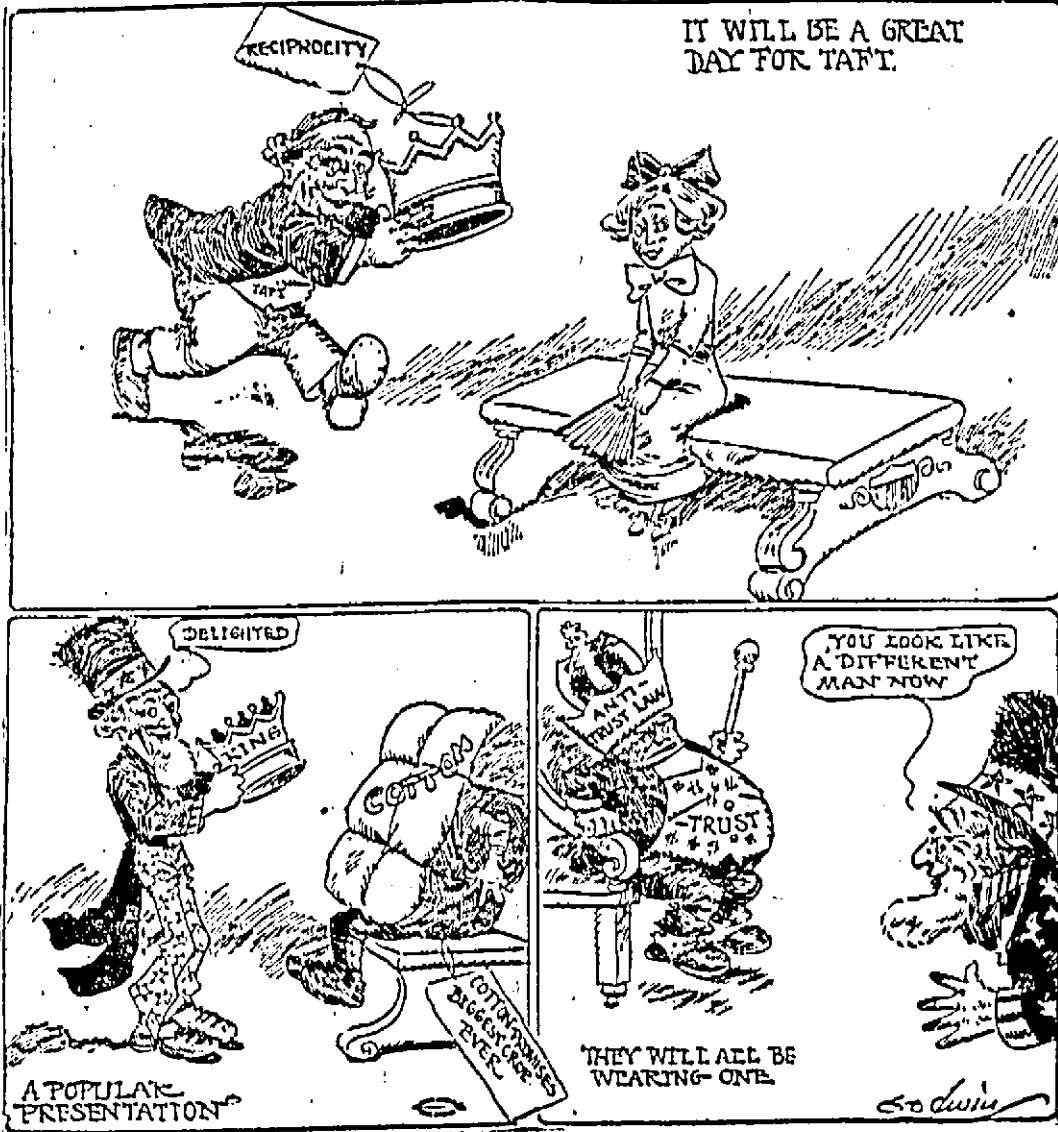

Senate corporations committee, providing for reports of accidents by railroad companies.

HEADQUARTERS HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED

TELEPHONES INSTALLED AND CLERK IS ON DUTY—COLLECTIONS BEING MADE.

READY TO LIST ROOMS

Persons Having Places Available for Visitors Will Do Well to Notify General Officer.

Headquarters of the joint committee of the Industrial and Commercial club and the United Spanish War Veterans handling the military celebration on July 3d, 4th and 5th, have been opened in the store at the corner of Milwaukee and South Main streets. D. W. Watt is in charge of the office and a stenographer is there all day to answer telephone calls and transact such business as may be necessary preliminary to the big celebration.

Persons who have rooms which they are willing to rent during the three days will do well to telephone their names and addresses to the office—Wisconsin phone No. 24, Rock county phone No. 1297—and have them listed free of charge. A number of persons who can accommodate, number of rooms, location, telephone number if you have one, and price. It will all be listed and ready for use when the time comes, without a cent's expense to you.

The committee has also decided upon Wednesday morning as the date for the big industrial parade which will be one of the features of the three days celebration. This promises to be one of the main attractions of the week and Secretary Lane of the Industrial and Commercial club would be glad to hear from all merchants who will have wagons or floats in the parade. Several firms have already signified their intention of taking part in this parade and it is expected that it will be a fine attraction.

In the evening, on Wednesday, comes the automobile parade with special prizes, to be announced later, as an inducement to the auto owners to take part. This parade will be early enough in the evening so as not to interfere with the special decorations of the autos that may be decorated with flags and bunting.

Persons desiring the mailing cards announcing the coming celebration can secure all they desire, free of charge, at the headquarters. It is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity and secure a number to mail to friends out of the city. It takes but one cent to send them through the mails and they are a decided novelty. Stickers for letters will also be on hand at the headquarters, Monday, and will also be distributed throughout the city. Business firms are requested to use them on their mail so as to give the coming celebration as much publicity as possible.

WET DEPARTURE FOR CHICAGO AUTOISTS

TWO CHICAGO CLUBS LEAVE FOR HOME AFTER NIGHT'S STAY IN CITY.

LIKED THE BOWER CITY

Fifty-one Car Loads Rold Stores For Oil Skins.—Tire Trouble Plenty During Trip To This City.

With the rain coming down in torrents and the drivers and others dressed in all of the wet weather clothes obtainable, the fifty-one cars of the Chicago Automobile Club and the Chicago Athletic Association which stopped in this city over night, on the fourth annual reliability run of those organizations, left the city this morning on the return trip to the Windy City. The machines left in the order of their numbers, the first car leaving at 9:20 and the last one, number 51 pulling out at 10:20.

Crowds of citizens filled the streets and sidewalks in front of the Myers Hotel to witness their departure. As the drivers and their observers in their respective cars, left the garage on North Main street, they went directly to the Myers Hotel, where they were checked out and started on their last lap by Official Starter, John De Long, of the Chicago Tribune.

Despite the dampening effect of the weather, smiles were plenty and all left with a merry wave of the hand and a "so long," which seemed to tell that they were well satisfied with their short stay in the Bower City. Many of the amateur drivers apparently did not expect wet weather as some were without chains for the wheels and few were provided with rain coats or oil skins. Local merchants were besieged and all were at last fitted out for the muddy journey back to Chicago.

It is estimated that about two hundred men besides the Chicago newspapermen and others came to this city last night with the run. Among the well known writers and newspaper people who were with the clubs were: John De Long, sporting writer of the Tribune, Walter Eckersall of the same department, John Briggs, the famous cartoonist of the same paper, Showbook of the Record-Herald, E. G. Westlake of the Post, and one Associated Press representative.

The first car arrived here yesterday afternoon at 3:40 and the last to appear checked in after seven. The cars were checked at the Myers Hotel and from there they proceeded to the garage, where they were stored for the night. On the first run to Janesville the following cars were penalized:

Car No. 7, 9.45 points, W. A. Week driver, Oakland car, member of C. A. C.; car No. 26, 4 points, T. J. Hyman driver, Chalmers, C. A. C.; car No. 2, 1 point, John Magee, Starns, C. A. A.

In contrast to the sloppy and wet day for their return, the members of the two clubs arrived yesterday amid dust and heat, and much concern was felt on their part upon getting their cars into the garage as to the situation of the cold bath. As fast as they came to the hotel they were met by citizens, who did all in their power to make them feel at home and to provide them with every comfort.

The starters, penitents, checkers and other officials of the run were out early this morning in their respective cars, all but the checker and starter leaving the city at about 8:30. The work of getting the machines out of their places in the garage took considerable time and the first car drove up to the Myers Hotel at nine o'clock to be checked out on the return run. John De Long, assisted by Walter Eckersall, did the starting.

Fifty-one hundred of the members of the two clubs were present at the boxing exhibition at the West Side Club last evening.

Following is a list of the cars participating in the run, the number of the car, the driver, the make of the machine and the club which it represents:

BROUGHT BACK HEALTH AFTER SEVERAL YEARS

"Tona Vita" Changed Entire Condition From the Tired, Dull Feeling to the Condition That Borders on the New Lease of Life.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Among the hundreds of statements being made in connection with the remarkable new tonic, "Tona Vita," none are more interesting than that given out by J. H. House of 3881 Twentieth avenue, a well known resident of Milwaukee.

Mr. House said: "For the past several years I have not enjoyed good health. I was all run down, intensely nervous and suffered with the most violent headaches. I felt tired and dull all day; my body seemed benumbed at times, and could not sleep at night. My bowels would not perform their proper functions; my digestion was imperfect, and I was continuously constipated. As soon as I ate anything my stomach would fill up with gas and I would be distressed for a half hour or more afterward. My mind was dull and my memory very poor. In this enfeebled condition I contracted cold very easily and suffered with severe coughs. I tested various medicines without relief, and finally lost hope."

"Ten days ago I talked with one of the 'Tona Vita' physicians at the drug store and he explained my trouble and advised me to try his preparation. I did it and am glad that I did for 'Tona Vita' proved a wonder in my case."

"Now feel like I have a new lease of life. My ambition has returned, as well as my strength and energy. I now sleep at night and get up in the morning feeling cheerful and ready for work."

"My wife was also run down and in poor health. She started taking the medicine when it began to help me. Her improvement has been fine and she is now in good health."

"Both Mr. and Mrs. House were victims of pronounced cases of nervous debility which may be found in any family," says one of the physicians who are introducing Tona Vita to the Milwaukee public.

"Half of the people in most of the larger cities find life a burden and have no real happiness as a result of this modern plague. Such people have uncertain appetites, poor digestion, uneasy sleep, little ambition, and they feel too tired for the simplest work most of the time. They suffer with timidity, have no initiative, are drowsy, and haven't enough good, rich blood in their veins to make them capable and self-reliant. 'Tona Vita' will remove this miserable condition within a remarkably short time. The medicine must do the work or money will be refunded."

Lee's Rhubarb Laxative, the assistant preparation, is the best family laxative in the world. The natural medicinal qualities of rhubarb—nature's purest and best laxative, are obtained in this medicine. Lee's Rhubarb Laxative will not harm the weakest constitution and is therefore ideal for children. It is very pleasant to the taste. The Smith Drug Co. has secured the agency in Janesville for these celebrated preparations.

THREE CLEVER BOUTS AT RINK LAST NIGHT

Janesville Athletic Club Affords Good
Boxing Entertainment at West Side Rink Last Evening.

Harry Forbes of Chicago not only showed that he could "come back," but also demonstrated his superiority over Joe Homeland of St. Louis in a splendid exhibition of boxing which went the scheduled limit of eight rounds before the Janesville Athletic club at the West Side rink last evening. Both weighed in under 118 pounds before the contest.

The first four rounds of the "go" were tame, but at the beginning of the fifth the one time bantam champion of the Windy City measured up and rounded into his old time form. His work was characterized by severe punishment of the St. Louis lad in the close mixes and with a continual rain of left and right to the face and jaw showed plainly that he was the pick of the contest. It was thought that the fight might have an early termination when Homeland dropped to his knees in the second.

In the semi-final, Young Cox, a local boy, put up a splendid showing against Kid Travers of Chicago in a six-round "go" and would have been picked a winner by all present had it not been for the fact that he continually dropped to his knees following a hard hit. The rounds figured up about even, but the shade should go to the Chicago lad, who was an older hand. He came in for some severe body punishment at the hands of Cox, who demonstrated that he was no "object of pity" by any means.

Much joy was furnished the gathering by the preliminary bout between Kid De Munn of Holmdel and Tony Cost of Gary, Indiana, scheduled to go eight rounds at 114 pounds. The steel worker from Gary came in for some very severe punishment at the hands of De Munn and entertained the assembly with a fine exhibition of wild rushes and swings. The exhibition came to a close in the seventh with Kid De Munn the pick of the contest.

Walter Bokorsall of the Chicago Tribune acted as referee for the three boxing exhibits. About one hundred of the members of the two Chicago clubs, who were stopping here over night on their annual reliability run, were present, and those combined with the local fight fans made up an audience rivalling any which has witnessed these exhibitions here for some time.

Aviation Meet at Peaville.
Boston, Mass., June 10.—What promises to be one of the most notable aviation meets held in New England opened at the Peaville trotting track today and will continue over tomorrow. Lincoln Beachey, C. TROLLEY DODGERS SHOW CLASSY WORK IN BOX.

In spite of the fact that Brooklyn stands next to Boston at the bottom of the list in the percentage column of the National league, the fact still remains that throughout the season their pitchers have shown up well. Manager Dahlgren's twirlers hold the Chicago Cubs in their recent series at an even break. Pitchers Bell, Rucker and Harger, have been hard for the opposing teams to solve throughout the season. This season's showing is viewed from the percentage column standpoint, but the fact remains that Dahlgren's three twirlers have held the Cubs down to a batting average of .197, while the Trolley Dodgers' mark against Cole, Roulbach, Nichle and Brown is .214.

San Diego, Cal.—Treasure hunters for years have been lured by the opportunity for quick gain. They have searched the globe in every nook and corner. Few have been successful, but according to a wireless report, the expedition financed by Harry Krelling, well known club man of San Francisco, is the one exception. A treasure estimated to contain from $15,000,000 to $65,000,000 in gold coin and jewels is said to have been found off the Honduran coast. The gold was hidden by the crew of a Chilean cruiser more than twenty years ago. It is said that maps showing the location of the buried treasure were in the possession of a former resident of Honduras who succeeded in interesting Krelling in his story of buried gold. As a result the "Eureka" was chartered and placed in command of Capt. Burdick. Great secrecy was maintained throughout the preparations for the trip. The vessel is expected here within a day or so at which time the report will be verified or the hopes of those back of the expedition destroyed.

$11, or $14.50 Gets a Third Or A Quarter More Value Now

It's rather hard to express our enthusiasm about this sale of $11.00 and $14.50 suits; you can expect anything within reason—and get it. The conditions responsible are very easily explained; we bought the entire remaining stock of summer weight suits from a well known Chicago manufacturer; suits that had to be disposed of; the makers' surplus. The suits are tailored only in those styles that the season has approved. The suits have been on our floor only two days, we've been saving them for Saturday. Every size.

Suits at $15 to be correct—they're specially purchased, worth 1/4 to 1/2 more. They're for younger men and youths who haven't any use for a smaller than a 31 or larger than a 40. cost. We haven't gone on the assumption that all young men want youthful styles, we're ready for the more serious minded fellows who like to look older than they are. $15 is only one of our prices, the whole range from $10 to $30 is equally worthy.

Great Display Of Straw Hats
Greater than ever, and that's saying a lot; not saying a bit more than we can prove, however. Panamas are several season hats, fine ones at $4.00 and $5.00. If you always wore a sailor you can't go wrong in choosing from these: $1.00 to $3.00. The season's greatest sellers are soft straws with pencil curl brims, $1.00 to $3.00.

The Newer Furnishings
Bought a soft cuff shirt yet? You ought to have one of these new ones with a soft collar, to match, decidedly comfortable on hot days, $2.00. Others at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.50. Fine line of plaid and negligee shirts at $1.00. Finest line of neckwear novelties here, abouts, 50c to 75c; new wash ties at 25c.

Here's A Great Big Stock Of Fine Shoes
Nothing you ought to choose quite so carefully as shoes—a half size is probably the exact difference between comfort and torture. That's why we make it a point to have the service we render you here go beyond the merchandise itself—that's why every man here is more than a salesman—they're all scientific shoe fitters.
MEN'S SHOES—Tan is the popular leather this season, but for the man who prefers blacks we have a comprehensive assortment. Men's and young men's shoes $2.50 to $5.00, styles most in demand at $3.50 and $4.00.
WOMEN'S SHOES—A brand new showing of white canvas, two strap pumps, at $1.50. No strap pumps, the best fitting pumps shown, positively will not bulge at the side or slip at the heel, in gun metal, patent, Russia calf, $3.00 and $3.50.

THE WAY IT IS DONE.

Collier's Weekly has an interesting item on Intendant "goose farming." In itself it is a lesson to the man or woman who reads the glittering literature of the "get-rich-quick" concerns that are always seeking to secure the savings of the general public. It sounds all right on paper, looks all right in figures, but is it all right? Read it over, carefully, and see if you can find the flaw or be like the Englishman and not see the point of the joke until day after tomorrow.

"A friend has sent us a 'prospectus for a goose farm.' It is one of the most perfect and convincing promoter's arguments we have seen. And all so brief and direct: Number of stockholders, 3; shares of stock, 3, at $100 par value; 300 geese at $1 each; 3 eggs per week per goose, 900 eggs per week—900 times 52 equals 46,800 eggs a year, and 3 times 46,800 equals 140,400 eggs in 3 years; 140,400 eggs incubated, allowing for 40,400 bad eggs, means 100,000 geese; 3 pounds of feathers per goose, at $1 per pound, will bring $300,000; 100,000 pairs of geese live, at 50 cents a pair, will mean $50,000; 2 butters from each goose bill, at 1 cent each, means $2,000; 100,000 dressed geese at $150 each would bring $15,000,000, and the estimated operating expenses total $100,000. Here is the balance sheet:

EXPENSES.
Capital invested $ 300
Operating expenses 150,000
Total.....$150,300

INCOME.
Feathers$300,000
Goose live 50,000
Butters 2,000
Dressed geese 15,000,000
Total.....$15,352,000
Expenses 150,300
Not profit.....$15,201,700

"To each stockholder would be paid a net profit of $107,267, or an annual income on his $100 investment of $35,755."

RAIN OR SHINE.

Rain or shine, the auto enthusiasts left Janesville this morning on their return trip to Chicago. What will not be done in the name of sport? The old Romans made a holiday and went to the arena and watched men fight to the bitter death or witnessed lions and bears tear and rend undefended Christians, and were delighted at the sight. Today they go to auto races where men defy death in speeding around dangerous curves and along slippery roads. They load their autos down with "skidding" chains and make light of rain, snow or mud. They tramp through the woods with the thermometer near zero for a shot at a deer, sit for hours in a drizzling rain to catch a "muskie" all in the name of sport. We are not so far removed from our Roman ancestors. We delight in all sorts of dangerous antics, risk life and limb and enjoy the sight of others doing likewise. The same idea of life does not appeal to the modern day civilization. Excitement is needed to stimulate the interest in the pleasures. Rain or shine, the maddening rush goes on. The more danger the more fun it is.

GOVERNMENT BANKS.

The Wall Street Journal has considerable to say relative to the government as a banking agent. It handles this much-mooted question in the following manner:

"Some expressions of an eminent steel magnate in regard to the relation of the government to the banks in the crisis of 1907 seem to be lending to false analogies between big private business and big government business. There is the greatest difference in the world, even when the element of direct competition is eliminated. The private business requires a degree of economy and efficiency which shall show profits; big government business requires only additional taxes on the taxpayer to meet any public need, without any necessity of showing a favorable balance sheet.

"The suggestion that the government should interfere in banking on the affirmative side, by telling the banks what they ought to do, is exceedingly dangerous. For the secretary of the treasury or any other official of the United States to say to a bank that it ought to make a certain loan would invite the natural rebuff, whether the government was prepared in such a case to guarantee the bank against loss. Even the more general proposition—that a bank which lent up to a certain margin on a given security should make a loan on similar terms on the same security to some other party—will not bear careful scrutiny. There is the widest difference in borrowers, even in the case of secured loans, and it legitimately influences the attitude of bankers. There is a difference not only in the surplus assets which borrowers may be known to have, over and above what are pledged for the loan, but there is a wide difference in sense of responsibility and disposition to observe the sanctity of contracts, even where assets are the same.

"The government already exercises wide authority on the negative side of banking. It may tell a banker what he may not do, almost without limit, even though it may not tell him what he shall do with the property of other people entrusted to his care. Again and again bank examiners, both federal and state, have directed banks and trust companies to eliminate certain securities from their assets, and in general such suggestions have been complied with. This would seem to be as far as government interference should go in respect to the character of the authority exercised, although there is no doubt room for improvement in respect to the manner of its exercise.

"Any implication that the government might step in and direct banks to lend to particular parties or on particular securities tends towards state socialism. Apart from its possible impairment of property rights it would require on the part of the government infinite wisdom, absolute justice and absolute power. To have these functions exercised by the government through boards of experts is perhaps a part of the dream of the practical socialist; but governments are composed only of men. Experience has shown that the stimulus of direct interest is usually, in the field of protection and development of property, the most potent motive for obtaining from men the most intense application and the soundest judgment."

THE RE-APPORTIONMENT.

The present legislature is going to re-apportion the state into new assembly and senatorial districts. It is to join Rock and Walworth counties into one senatorial district and to divide the county into two instead of three assembly districts. Taking the matter over with one of the old line conservative senators remaining in Madison, it is learned that all this change is being done with a view of strengthening the "reform" element and making it assured that future legislatures be composed of nothing but strictly Simon pure reformers of the type most desired by those who are in the political saddle. If this be so, there is little hope of any equitable adjustment of conditions and the under dog must take his medicine without a growl of protest.

Announcement that the "Mint" in New Orleans was to be closed, caused considerable excitement south of the Mason and Dixie line to several old "Colonels" who understood the government meant "Mint Juleps."

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

MAN AND WOMAN.

In a public discussion on equal suffrage recently an Iowa orator exclaimed:

"Woman is inherently weaker in body and intellect than man!"

Is she?

Let us call the roll of history.

When Israel was at its lowest ebb a woman—the patriotic Deborah—restored the nation. She not only led the armies, but also wrote the battle hymns.

From her throne in Egypt Cleopatra ruled her own country and ruled also the world's greatest rulers—Caesar and Mark Antony.

The "golden age" of Greece was the age of Pericles. But a woman ruled Pericles and Athens and was able to answer Socrates according to his light—Aristotle.

Babylon has long since fallen. Once it was great. Who organized Babylon, ruled it and led its armies? Who but Semiramis, a woman.

Who shook Rome when even Hannibal, the great son of Hamilcar, was unable? Zenobia, a woman.

What sovereign of Russia can be compared to Peter the Great? Only one—the great Catherine.

In the annals of England what two regents stand out above all others? Any schoolboy will tell you the regents of Elizabeth and Victoria.

Can Austria in all its troubled history point with pride to a more eminent ruler than strong Maria Theresa? China with its centuries of government never had an able executive than the late Empress Tai An.

And of peerless leaders in battle who is above the Orleans maid of seventeen, Joan of Arc?

When gross tyranny oppressed the people of South America the amazons alone were able to free them.

And Margaret of Anjou leveled thrones.

Time and space will fail me to tell of those early American heroines who fought, side by side with their husbands, bent and savage, and of Moll Pitcher at Monmouth and Hannah Whithrop of Lexington, of the heroic nurses and spies of the Federal and Confederate armies, to say nothing of the brainy women who led philanthropies and won reforms and who distinguished our time.

Inferior to men?

I would undertake to show from history that where women have been given an equal chance she has proved her superiority.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

BRYANT AND THE EMBARGO.

During the early years of the nineteenth century England was at war with France, and sometimes had difficulty in keeping her navy supplied with the right kind of men. There were many desertions, and frequently the deserters would find service on board American ships. Whereupon the English fell into the habit of overhauling American ships and seizing them for deserters. This the Americans did not like, especially when it happened, as it sometimes did, that American citizens were impressed into the English service. At the instigation of President Jefferson congress passed the Embargo act, which prohibited American vessels from trading with foreign countries. Thus England could not buy certain much needed American articles, as she had been doing. But the Embargo act was very unpopular with many Americans, and the feeling on their part against President Jefferson was very bitter. William Cullen Bryant, then a youth of thirteen, wrote a lengthy trade against him, in the course of which, he said:

Disclose thy secret measures, foul or fair;
Go, search with curious eyes for horned frogs,
Mid the wild wastes of Louisiana bogs;
Or, where Ohio rolls her turbid stream,
Dig for huge bones, thy glory and thy theme,
Go, scan, philologist, thy creaks,
And sink supinely in her sable arms."

Bryant was becomingly ashamed of this when he grew up, and the poem will not be found among his collected works.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)

By WALT MASON.

The boy stood on the burning deck—
An orator was he, and in that scene of fire and smoke he spoke quite fluently.
"The men who hold the public snaps should all be fired," he CASABIANCA cried "they should make room for worthy claps who will their turn outside. True virtue always stands without, and vanity yawns and rolls, while wickedness in office shouts, and passes round the spoils. One rule should govern our fair land—a rule that's bound to win; all office holders should be canned, to let some new ones in. All people usefully employed at large, in toll or shop, should know that labor's null and void—man's duty is to yawn. The farmer should forsake his plow, the harness man his straps; the blacksmith should get busy now, and look around for snaps. Why should the carpenter perform, when we have honest enough; why should producers round us swarm, when attention are the stuff? Why should we put up lee or lay, or deal in clothes or meat, when politicians point the way that leads to easy street?" There came a burst of thunder sound; the boy—O where was he? Ask of the winds that all around with lungs bestrode the sea.

ONE DEAD, TWO HURT IN FIRE.

Flames Attack Three-Story Flat Building at 2286 Blue Island Avenue.

Chicago, June 16.—A man was burned to death, a woman leaped from a third-story window and was injured, probably fatally, and another man was all but suffocated in a fire that destroyed a three-story flat building at 2286 Blue Island avenue.

The flames spread so rapidly that the entire part of the house was burning before the occupants were aroused. Andrew Welsh, forty-one years old, was burned in his bed.

WRECKED CATHEDRAL ENTRANCE.

Bomb Exploded Near Famous Edifice at Valencia, Spain.

Valencia, Spain, June 16.—The great entrance of the cathedral here was shattered by a bomb exploded in the plaza in front. So violent was the shock that several neighboring buildings were damaged. No person was injured.

The Gothic cathedral at Valencia is known as La Seo and is supposed to occupy the site of a temple of Diana. The present building was finished in 1452.

Will Aid The Work

The work of the collectors for the Subscription Department to "The Gazette" can be greatly assisted if the patrons of the paper will have their payments ready at the time the collector calls. Most of our friends have assisted nicely in this connection and their promptness is appreciated. With several hundred calls to make each month, it is no small task and where it is necessary to make several return calls, the work is greatly increased. The collectors make the rounds of the city on the following dates, or near those dates:

EIGHT-DAY TERMS HANDED TO FOUR

Drunks Arraigned in Court This Morning Will Spend a Week and a Day With Sheriff Ransom.

Eight day sentences were the popular bid in municipal court this morning, the judge handing them out to four prisoners for drunkenness. Tom Conley of Beloit and George Williams were two of the recipients for their inability to pay a fine of $4 and costs. A fine of $5 and costs was fixed for Tom Elliott and George Gilmore, and they, too, went to jail. The latter two, the police say, made nuisances of themselves yesterday, going about the residence districts bothering housewives by begging. Whenever their pleas were not heeded, they attempted to sell needles and several complaints were received at the police station. The men were later captured on High street just as they were being ordered away from a house. One of the men wore blue glasses in an effort to secure sympathy.

TEAM AND MAN WHO HIRED IT MISSING

Stranger Who Hired Rig of M. Goodman Yesterday Afternoon Has Not Returned and Search is Being Made for Him.

Search is today being made for a stranger who yesterday afternoon hired a team from M. Goodman's livery and has not since reappeared with the rig. The man took the horses and carriage from the livery barn about half past one o'clock yesterday afternoon, stating that he desired to go a short ways into the country.

Since then, however, nothing has been heard from the man or the outfit. Mr. Goodman this morning notified Sheriff E. H. Hanson that the rig was missing and was able to furnish a good description of the party who hired the rig. Prosecution will undoubtedly be started in case the man is found.

Through some information received this afternoon, the authorities have reason to believe that the man may be found in Beloit and acting upon this information the sheriff left this afternoon on the two o'clock car for the Line City.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK
COMES TO CLOSE AT SEMINARY FRIDAY

Evansville Institution Goes Through With Week of Exercises All of Which Were Pronounced
A Success.

Evansville, June 15.—The exercises of commencement week at the Evansville Seminary, closed yesterday morning. The commencement literary program given in the Seminary chapel Friday evening, was of a very high character and was enjoyed by a large audience.

On Saturday evening Miss Anna L. Burton, the principal gave a most interesting talk on the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, illustrated by stereopticon views. Miss Burton was thoroughly acquainted with her subject, having visited this region and collected those views last summer for the express purpose of using them in her school work. As she led the way through those wonderful cavernous grottoes ever flowing rivers, and by still waters in her simple interesting manner, her listeners caught a glimpse of the rare personality of the woman which has made her so much beloved among her pupils, and has enabled her to lead them not only through the tortuous paths of underground caves, but through the narrow dangerous paths of life out into the purer air and the freer sunshine.

Rev. A. L. Whitcomb delivered the baccalaureate sermon at the Methodist church on Sunday evening before a large and appreciative audience. He took for his subject, "The Sovereign Mind" and in a fearless and forcible manner discussed some of the qualities that make for perfect mindhood. He scored without mercy certain evils in our present day society and asked the people of Evansville to consider seriously those evils.

The class day exercises were given in Macque's opera house Monday evening, and were very original and entertaining. A happy event in which Miss Anna Burton as a typist told the fortunes of her classmates, was the novel way in which the class prophecy was given. Ernest Froebel gave a strong and well delivered oration on the subject, "The True Victor," Ivan Pavlov's oration, "Launched Whither Bound?" was altogether in character.

Mr. Fay is a young man of rare ability and splendid personal address and did himself honor on this occasion. Mr. Fay also gave a monologue, "Those old sweethearts of mine," accompanied by the playing of eight lovely maidens who represented the sweethearts of the reverie. This was very beautiful and one of the most attractive numbers in the program. Miss Frances Whitcomb recited Annie Hamilton Bonnell's story, adapted in a correctly sympathetic manner, and Julia Bowley gave a selection from Sherburne's "The Rivalry." This was exceptionally well given, showing a rare gift in impersonation. These are a few of the many interesting numbers which together made this one of the finest class day programs ever presented by a graduating class of the Seminary.

The graduating address was given Tuesday morning at ten o'clock by Rev. George H. Trover of Atlanta, Georgia. He handled his subject, "How much are you worth?" in a masterly manner. The topic was divided into four divisions as follows: 1st, you own your own life; 2nd, you own your own personality; 3rd, you own only what you can retain; 4th, you own only what will make for your highest welfare. 4th, you own only what you can use to please God. Miss Anna Burton, the principal presented the diploma and closing remarks were made by Rev. W. G. Hamner, President of Board of Trustees. LUMBER BLACKLIST IS CHARGED.

Prosecutor Says Letters Prove Existence of an Extended Monopoly.

Kansas City, Mo., June 16.—A bundle of letters which passed between John A. Gorschuch, attorney of the Southwestern Lumbermen's association, and Carl A. Drake, formerly secretary of the Texas Lumbermen's association, and which were confiscated from Drake's office, put vigor into the state's contest against the alleged lumber monopoly when they were introduced in evidence here.

Mr. Gorschuch admitted the letters were genuine.

The state contends that the letters, which were read, prove:

That 14 lumbermen's associations, embracing practically the whole United States, maintained an "information bureau" to tell what manufacturers sold direct to the consumer.

That manufacturers who sold to retailers that failed to keep their association obligations were blacklisted.

That Mr. Gorschuch was fearful lest the workings of the "information bureau" violate the anti-trust laws.

Musically Described.

"There is never any discord in your family," "No," answered Mr. Meekton, "not exactly discord, but there is some mighty 'close harmony'."

DRAMATIC INCIDENTS DEVELOP AT TRIAL OF EDGAR S.
COOKE OF CINCINNATI.

MRS. FORD IS ON THE STAND

Advent of Witness Little Girl in Court, Her Confession That Accused Man Is Child's Illegal Father, Breaks Her Spirit.

Cincinnati, June 14.—During the trial of Edgar S. Cooke, charged with embezzling $24,000 from the Big Four railroad, two dramatic incidents occurred, one of which brought tears to the eyes of Judge, jury, attorneys and spectators, the other arousing their curiosity to a marked degree.

The first aroused the curiosity of all who saw.

Mrs. Jeannette Stewart-Ford, on the stand for cross-examination, and Mrs. Edgar S. Cooke, wife of the defendant, figured in the first incident. When the matronly-looking woman who has stood by Cooke through all his troubles took a seat at his side, there was a murmur of expectancy, intensified when Mrs. Ford's invalid chair was wheeled in front of the jury.

"Eternal Triangle" Complete.

It was the first time in years that the "eternal triangle" had been completed in Cooke's case, but all concerned kept their impulses under control and there was no indication on the wife's countenance that she felt anything but pity for the other woman.

The second stirring scene was preceded by the entrance of Mrs. Ford's daughter, aged six. The child ran to her mother just as the latter said: "There is my daughter Jeannette, and she is Cooke's child."

The witness burst into sobs as she made this confession and tears streamed down the faces of jurymen and spectators. Even the attorneys for the prosecution and the judge on the bench, turned to scenes of suffering, showed their feelings.

Mrs. Ford Collapses.

The child's entrance was preceded by the introduction of a letter from Mrs. Ford to Cooke in which she asked him to visit her at the hospital or at least to send her some money, and to provide for their daughter. So shaken was Mrs. Ford by the incident that she was removed from the room and after an interval her physician told the court that she could not stand the ordeal of further examination.

Cross-examination of the woman was merciless throughout. Under the fire of questions she admitted having shot and wounded Cooke and of having had him arrested in Chicago.

Crumpled and Twisted Masses of Steel
Revealed as Water Is Lowered May ship's Hull.

Havana, June 15.—That the shattering of the hull of the battleship Maine, expressed by the mute testimony of steel ribs bent apart, decks upheaved and hurled far from their original position, bulkheads crumpled like sheets of paper and apparently inextinguishable masses of construction material, is evidently far greater than supposed, was revealed as a result of a superficial observation made possible by the lowering of the water level in the cove in a total of seven feet.

STOKES LEAVES THE HOSPITAL.

Wounded Millionaire Goes to Summer
Home—Is Out of Danger.

New York, June 15.—W. E. D. Stokes, the wealthy proprietor of the Ansonia hotel, who was shot on June 8 by Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, when he entered their apartments for the alleged purpose of securing letters he had written to Miss Graham, was removed from Roosevelt hospital to his summer home at Long Branch, N. J.

The attending physicians asserted Mr. Stokes to be entirely out of danger. Through his attorney, Mr. Stokes stated he would return to the city as soon as his physician would permit, to aid in the prosecution of the young women.

KING'S HORSES INJURE MANY.

Dash Into Crowd Along Walk and Several Children Are Hurt.

London, June 15.—An accident happened at Windsor immediately after the king and queen had entered the castle on their return from Ascot. A spare team of the royal horses took fright and dashed among the people who lined the long walk, with the result that eight persons, including several children, were injured severely.

A perturbation in which three children were sitting was kicked over and smashed, one of the children being badly cut on the mouth and head and bruised.

Physicians arrived quickly and a score of persons who had been knocked down were treated.

Liability Bill Signed.

Columbus, O., June 15.—Governor Harrison signed the employers' liability bill which creates an insurance fund and also a commission to disburse it. The employees pay ten and the employers 90 per cent. into the fund.

That the shattering of the hull, expressed by the mute testimony of steel ribs bent apart, decks upheaved and hurled far from their original position, bulkheads crumpled like sheets of paper and apparently inextinguishable masses of construction material, is evidently far greater than supposed, was revealed as a result of a superficial observation made possible by the lowering of the water level in the cove in a total of seven feet.

On account of this unforeseen revelation all plans heretofore proposed for dealing with the ultimate removal of the hull have become merely conjectural until a considerably greater amount of water has been pumped out.

Worse Conditions Revealed.

As the water receded every successive foot revealed worse conditions in that portion of the hull forward of amidships, which was subjected to the main force of the explosion. The bow section is still nearly twenty feet below the surface, and here it is believed the destruction will be found to have been even more complete. The work of pumping was somewhat delayed because of the heavy rains and a slight interruption of the electric current. It is the intention to put into service the most powerful pumps and lower the water more rapidly.

May Find Bodies Soon.

Colonel Black of the engineer corps, said that he had reasonable expectation of lowering the water a total depth of eighteen or twenty feet within three or four days, which would make possible a fairly complete exploration of all portions of the ship.

Two Americans Killed.

It is probable the searchers may be able to enter the officers' quarters in the after structure in a day or two, where they may find the body of Ensign Merritt, the only officer missing, the body of Lieutenant Jenkins, the only other officer killed, having been recovered from the torpedo chamber shortly after the explosion.

STANDARD LOSES KANSAS CASE.

Three Oil Companies Enjoined From Combining to Stifle Competition.

Topeka, Kan., June 15.—The Kansas supreme court handed down a decision in the state's suit against three subsidiary companies of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, prohibiting them from combining to stifle competition.

The three companies are the Standard Oil company of Indiana, the Standard Oil company of Kansas and the Prairie Oil and Gas company.

The defendant companies are enjoined from owning stock in each other, from selling petroleum or petroleum products cheaper in one part of the state than in another for the purpose of driving out competition, and from making contracts with any person to cause the latter to refrain from selling oil in Kansas.

The Standard Oil company of Indiana, the selling company, is restrained from selling under different brands or trade names oil of the same quality and value.

STRIKE ENDED ON FOUR LINES.

Speedy Settlement of Ocean Seamen's Trouble Is Seen.

London, June 15.—The important development in the general shipping strike was the concession of an advance of $2.50 a month in wages, which was accepted by all employees involved, by the White Star company, the Canadian Pacific railway, the Holt and another line at Liverpool.

The present outlook is that the strike will come to a speedy end owing to the men's lack of organization or their indifference, in addition to the plentiful supply of foreigners who are ready to take their places.

At several of the large ports no inconvenience because of the strike has yet been caused, and nowhere has there been any real accession to the strike movement. On the contrary, there were several instances where the crews signed without protest.

of Albany (N. Y.) Team.

Albany, N. Y., June 15.—Arthur E. Brown, first baseman of the Albany team of the New York State league, was shot and killed here by John V. McSteen, an actor from New Orleans. It was alleged that Brown was visiting McSteen's wife.

McSteen was charged with first degree murder. He admitted the shooting, saying to the police: "He broke up my home and ruined my life, and he must suffer the consequences."

TRIESTE STORM DROWNS MANY.

Trieste, Austria, June 15.—A storm of hurricane force raged during the night, causing many deaths and much damage to shipping. The bodies of 20 victims had been recovered at this point.

It is feared that fishing smacks with crews totalling 40 men, which were at sea, were lost. The ships in the roads were severely damaged. A Greek vessel, with its crew of 12, foundered.

Orient and Occident Confer.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—A notable two days' conference was opened in this city today by the Persian-American Educational society, an organization which aims at closer relationship between the East and the West and which also plans to broaden its scope so as to embrace a world-wide campaign of education and economic development and peace propaganda. The attendance at the conference includes delegates from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago and other cities. Probably the most notable participant is Gouda Kanoun, the first Persian woman who has ever visited America.

William H. Hoar of New York, president of the society, called the conference to order this morning and delivered the opening address. Other speakers and their topics were Mirza Ahmad Sahab of Isfahan, Persia, on "The Persian Women," and Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace Society, on "Peace, the Key-note of the Orient."

At the session this afternoon addresses were delivered as follows: Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews of Boston, secretary of the American School Peace League, "Education and International Peace"; Hooper H. Harris of New York, "Is Persia's Future Safe?"; Charles Mason Remy of Washington, D. C., "The Necessity of Closer Relationship Between the Orient and the Occident"; Roy C. Wilkins of New York, "How to Moderate Persia," and Prof. H. P. Diller of Washington, D. C., "Alma of the Oriental University."

Public Buildings to Harmonize.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—In response to the call of President Taft the National Fine Arts Commission, whose membership includes a number of the most noted painters, architects, sculptors and landscape artists in the country, assembled in the capital today for an important meeting. The chief purpose is to pass upon the plans for the three new federal buildings to house the Departments of State, of Commerce and Labor, and of Justice. All three buildings are to have architectural features that harmonize. If completed, as now planned, the three great structures will be the most notable single improvement ever undertaken in Washington. The buildings are to be located between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. The Department of Justice will occupy the building nearest the Treasury, the Department of Commerce and Labor the next, and the Department of State the building farthest from the Treasury.

SCHOOL YEAR ENDS WITH GRADUATION

CLASS OF FORTY-SIX RECEIVED THEIR DIPLOMAS AFTER FOUR-YEARS' HARD WORK.

EXERCISES LAST NIGHT

In High School Auditorium Proved
Most Interesting to the Visitors and General Public.

School days for the class of 1911 of the Janesville High School are over. With the presentation of the diplomas to the 46 members of the graduating class by Dr. Buckmaster last evening, the last official act of the class as a part of the school closed. Starting in with a hundred and twenty-nine members the class dwindled down to forty-six and these are now alumni of the school in which they have worked so faithfully during their four-year course.

The program last evening proved most interesting. It showed careful work and preparation on the part of those taking part and evidenced the work of the four years' training by the teachers. The large auditorium was well filled with interested friends of the graduates and the enthusiasm displayed evidenced the happy culmination of the year's work.

The first number on the evening's program was a musical selection rendered by the high school orchestra, assisted by the orchestra of the Baptist church. Prayer was given by Rev. David Heaton, A. A. Harry Sholes, president of the class, welcomed the many friends and relatives of the graduates to witness their grand achievement.

William Hemming, in relating the history of the class, lauded their progress and told of the transformation of the giddy Freshmen to dignified Seniors. Especially emphasizing the evolution in hair-dressing among the girls of the class and also the change in dress. Arthur Ford in his oration, "The Wizard of Menlow Park," described the relationship of the inventor to all mankind. He briefly outlined the work of Thomas Edison and his achievements.

One of the kindest numbers on the evening's program was next rendered by Della Campbell, namely, a musical reading entitled, "Enoch Arden." "America a World Power" was the subject of Valentino Mott's oration. Frank Birmingham in his oration, "War," told of the relationship of war to the civilization of mankind. He told of how it had given us our independence and had been the means of spreading Christianity. Lois May Thorne, accompanied by her sister Margaret on the violin, sang "The Red, Red Rose."

Elmer Cuckow displayed his oratorical ability in his oration "America's Awakening." So graphically did he describe the rise of the progressive movement within the last few years and so skillfully did he present the prominence with which Wisconsin has undertaken this movement, that the audience could not contain themselves and at the mention of Senator La Follette's name, a mighty cheer rent the air.

A masterpiece of classical art was the token which the class of 1911 presented the school through their representative, John Shawman. Alice Blanche Hayes next gave the valedictory address and Dr. Buckmaster presented the diplomas for which the class had been striving for four years. After this the entire class, led by Wanda Evans, sang the class song. The song itself was a clever production on the part of Wanda Evans and was beautifully rendered by the class. With the giving of the class song, "Freshmen, Freshmen, 1907-Seniors, Seniors, 1911," an epoch in the lives of the graduates was established and one of the milestones reached.

Those who received their diplomas were:

Edna M. Badger, Florence R. Bancroft, Francis T. Birmingham, John McCormick Brown, Della Campbell, Sylvia Ruth Cannon, Gertrude M. Cassaday, Elmer Cuckow, Lloyd Eldridge Curtis, Ellis S. Echlin, Wanda E. Evans, Arthur Thomas Ford, Margaret Agatha Gates, Wilfred C. Granger, William Henry Grant, Mariel P. Haviland, Alice Blanche Hayes, Rachel Gilmore Head, William H. Hemming, Norman E. Hild, Elsie Ellen Howe, Carrie May Hugulin, Katherine Lask Joffis, Katherine Hazel Kotchpaw, Olga M. Larson, Mary Elsie E. Luster, Ruth A. Mahoney, Pearl C. Marsden, John Robert McGilley, Mary D. McGregor, Charles Winthrop Metcalf, Valentine M. Mott, Maggie Oakley, Nellie May Robertson, Verella Marcella Kowley, Lois D. Runnige, M. Edna Schroeder, John Murat Shawman, Harry Arndt Sholes, Janey Louise Sholes, Adelaide Mary Thiele, Lois May Thorne, Edith June Timpany, Ruth Zell Wheeler, Lohi Whittemore, Gerald Kelley Woolf.

Barnum & Bailey Circus.

There is no living animal so attractive in appearance as the giraffe, graceful in form, beautiful in color and stately in movement, measuring sometimes twenty feet from the fore feet to the crown.

Cameloparda (Giraffes) were well known to the ancient Romans. They were a conspicuous feature in the gorgeous exhibitions of the Coliseum at Rome, originally called the Amphitheatrum Flavium.

Giraffes in an elaborate description of a Coliseum entertainment tell how, by the order of Probus, a great quantity of large trees torn up by the roots, were transplanted into the midst of the circus.

This spacious and shady forest was immediately filled with lions, tigers, bears, zebras, elk and cameloparda, the last being the loftiest and most harmless creatures that wandered over the plains of Syria and Ethiopia.

The unoffending strength with which nature has endowed the greater quadrupeds was admired in the rhinoceros, the hippopotamus, and a majestic herd of thirty-two elephants.

This awful exhibition of slaughter was gazed upon in stupid wonder by the Roman populace.

With the ultimate overthrow of the Roman Empire, the camelopard finally disappeared from Europe, and for some centuries became a stranger to the civilized world.

We do not find the giraffe again mentioned until the close of the fifteenth century, when Lorenzo de Medici exhibited one in Florence.

The first of these animals seen in England was a gift from the Pasha of Egypt to George IV. It arrived in London in 1828 and died the following year.

On the 24th of May, 1836, four giraffes were exhibited in the Zoological Gardens, Regents Park, London. They were brought from the southwest of Kordofan, and cost to transport £2,268.3.1, or about $12,000.

The largest herd of giraffes known to be in captivity is owned and exhibited by the Barnum and Bailey (Greatest Show on Earth), which comes to Janesville next Tuesday.

The herd includes four, one, healthy specimens, two males and two females.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

THAT most women make housework just about twice as hard as it should be is the theory of the man-who-thinks.

He came into the kitchen the other day and found his wife standing by the stove popping corn, and with that as a text, he gave us a five minute lecture on why women are poor housewives and men would be better ones.

"You women never know how to save yourselves. Tell me one good reason why you couldn't sit down and pop that corn. No? Of course you can't. More work to get a chair than its worth? Now, if that isn't a typical woman's reason. That's just the difference between a man's and a woman's way of doing work. A woman is never willing to make a little fatiguing preparation, use her brains a little for the sake of saving herself in the end, and a man is."

"Every woman must know that standing on her feet too much, is likely to cause kidney trouble and a dozen other things, and yet they will stand up when they might just as well sit down."

"What could you do sitting down that you don't? Well, iron, for one thing. You couldn't get a good purchase? Nonsense! You let me fix the chair and the board just right and you'll get just as good a purchase as you could by standing up till your legs ached and bending over till your back ached."

"And what about paring vegetables? I've seen you stand over that sink for half an hour paring potatoes and onions and doing that sort of thing. Was there any reason you couldn't sit down?"

"I've noticed, but that I can't think up just now."

"And then there's another thing. You know just how much it tires you to stoop over and yet look at the things you keep on the floor or down low, that might be where you could easily reach them. There's the bread jar and the cookie jar and the dust-pail and broom and the sugar bucket and the molasses jug and a dozen other things that you are using all the time and ought to have where you can reach them easily."

"Of course some things have to go in less convenient places, but why don't you take care to put the things you don't often use there, and have the things you're using all the time handy. There's those two drawers in the pantry for instance. I've noticed that in the top drawer you keep your towels and aprons and go to it perhaps once a day, and in the second you keep your string and paper and little things like that and open it a dozen times a day. Now what's the sense in that?"

"If men did housework I can tell you there would be a good deal more system to it and a good deal less time and energy wasted in the long run."

"You are welcome to try right here any time you want, dear," suggested the man-who-thinks' wife, sweetly.

"Any time you are ready to do my work in the office," retorted the man-who-thinks promptly.

Of course we smiled at that and assured him that he wouldn't be quite so ready to threaten if he weren't so sure that he wouldn't have to put his theories into practice. It wouldn't have been safe for his masculine vanity for us to do otherwise.

But just the same—very much between ourselves, sisters all—don't you think there is a germ of suggestion in his curtain lecture?

Are we all an systematic and self-saving in our arrangements and our methods as we might be?

For those of us who haven't finished our house-cleaning yet, would it be such a bad idea to look at the rest of our re-arranging through the eyes of the man-who-thinks' criticism?

Heart and Home Talks

By Barbara Boyd

In Cupid's Realm.

Does the Domestic Life Hamper?

WHAT a handicap to intelligent thought and action, the average marriage relationship is," writes a correspondent. "I am beginning to agree with Shaw that marriage ought to be abolished."

This conclusion is reached by my correspondent because her brother, a man much interested in the natural sciences, when with her and interested friends discourses by the hour on biology and kindred subjects in a most entertaining and inspiring fashion. He wakes up all over and is a different man from the one of his own household. For when with his wife and family, he seldom mentions these matters, since no one is interested in them. He is, as the writer says, "just a domesticated animal, like most middle-class married males. Away from his family, he is a more interesting, a more worth-while man." So she concluded, domesticity is a handicap, and marriage is holding down many a genius into a humdrum commonplace existence.

Perhaps this is true. Those who have read Wells' "Love and Mr. Lewisham," may recall Mr. Lewisham's wonderful "Scheme," a written when a student, by which he was going to revolutionize the universe and make everything straight and as it ought to be, by his genius; and how, at the end of a year of married life, he tore his "Scheme" into bits and threw it into the waste-paper basket, and went to grubbing to support his wife, a baby and a mother-in-law. He never spent hours discoursing to his wife and interested friends discourses by the hour on biology and kindred subjects, as he had given years to master, because in the first place his wife wouldn't have understood him, for she had never studied science, and in the second place he was too dog-tired to talk. Domesticity had clipped his wings. Yet he felt that having a son was more worth while than having a career.

Which is the saner conclusion? Is domesticity a hamper? Or are its rewards the better?

Sentimentally, we may think its rewards more worth while; yet nevertheless, many a man and many a woman as they say this, think back a bit regretfully to their youthful ambitions. They sigh a bit as they recall certain cherished projects now thrown overboard to marry, and of how difficult their life is from what they had planned. Sometimes, they think a little bitterly that it would be some compensation if they could discuss these ambitions in their home, and find intelligent sympathy. But as in the case of my correspondent's brother, those of the family circle do not appreciate these attainments or interests, and if they want appreciation, they must seek it outside of the home circle.

But surely, the marriage relationship in itself is not to blame for all this. But rather the conditions under which married life is today lived. Marriage becomes to the man, largely a matter of supporting the family, as it did in Mr. Lewisham's case. And everything else must be dropped in order to wage this warfare for a living. With the wife, it becomes a matter of making ends meet, of sweeping and cooking and cleaning and mending and taking care of the children. Their conversation is more concerned with shoes for the children than science. These are the things that hamper; not marriage in itself. It is these hampering conditions that should be abolished, not the sweetness and inspiration of comradeship.

The great majority of married people are compelled to live the lower life at present, to be consumed with anxiety over the bread-and-butter facts of existence because of industrial conditions. Remove this bread-and-butter anxiety, and the mental and spiritual life would spring up like flowers when the icy hand of winter is removed.

Escaped Death Thirteen Times.

John H. Allen of North Hempstead, L. I., on his thirteenth escape from death, the last time in an auto accident, remarked that he was a lucky man. Here are some of the things that have happened to him: Left leg cut off by train, shot out eye cleaning a revolver, lost an arm by fall from a tree, was saved three times from drowning.

Sometimes a Hard Task.

"When a man says, 'I know what I'm talking about,' says the Philosopher of Folly, 'the only way can get even is by asking him to prove it.'"

reference. Some people insisted that it was a sign from heaven and that the master was about to show his wrath for the sins of the world. But everything came out all O. DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

FRESH CHEESE GOOD BRAIN FOOD.

Cheese, if fresh, is a rich protein food, and an aid to digestion, but old cheese is dangerous and it should not be tasted. Cheese, like milk, is extremely incompatible with the small fruits, blackberries, strawberries, raspberries, etc., which need not be eaten at all, except alone in the morning, fresh, in summer. It is also incompatible with nuts. Full cream cheese, fresh, would make a better combination with beans than pork. With bread it is especially compatible.

Brain work requires more fresh, easily assimilated proteins than manual labor, but in either case the less draft made upon the stomach for digestion the more vitality will be left for work, of whatever kind. This is the physiological side of the economy of eating, not forgetting the relative digestibility of foods and the great difficulty of excreting the waste of albuminous foods as compared with sugars, starches and fats.

The KITCHEN CABINET

LXQUINITE muslin and beautiful flowers. Are the chief charms of these dinners of ours.

A PROGRESSIVE DINNER PARTY.

Here is an idea which is not new, but which has been tried most successfully by many hostesses. This arrangement relieves the hostess of the strain of entertaining to a great extent, and does away with the usual stiffness which is the particular horror of one entertaining.

Have several small tables; each may have a distinctly different decoration. At one small table the hostess sits, and she selects one of her friends to preside at each of the other tables. To these falls the duty to promote the enjoyment of the guests.

As the groups change, between each course, a delightful feeling of sociability follows each change.

Deadens being an easier way of entertaining one's friends, the smaller tables lend themselves to decoration and make a prettier general effect than one long one.

The colors may be arranged in harmony, as a white, pink and green table, with flowers in keeping with the color.

RECIPES WORTH TRYING.

When an emergency soup is wanted, take a tablespoonful of peanut butter worked to a paste with milk. Beat a cup and a half of milk with a slice of onion. Melt a tablespoonful of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Pour the scalded milk slowly on this, and when smooth season with salt and pepper to taste. When serving pea soup, garnish with a tablespoonful of finely-chopped mint.

Breakfast Dish.—Toast six slices of bread in a slow oven until a golden brown. Butter and dip into a little hot cream or milk, just long enough to moisten. Peel half a dozen bananas and put them through a ricer. Place a generous tablespoonful on each slice. This makes a nice luncheon dish also.

Rhubarb Sponge.—Line a mold with pieces of sponge cake; pour over stewed rhubarb, then put another layer of cake. Put a plate with a weight on top, and after a few hours turn out on a plate and serve with custard.

WHITE "GOING-AWAY" COSTUME
A FAD THIS YEAR.

The smart little suit called by courtesy the traveling costume, but really a gay little affair donned only for the first stage of the wedding journey when goodbyes are to be said to a circle of friends, is this spring often of white serge or mohair, built in faultless tailored style. The suit pictured is a Marital Command model and is of pin striped white mohair with a notecut hem of white satin and white pearl buttons with cord loops to fasten. The graceful necktie is of cyclamen pink silk and this is matched by the pretty hat heaped with pink roses.

BRITZ OF HEADQUARTERS

By MARVIN BARBER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RYAN

A dark-blue limousine standing at the corner of Forty-fourth street caught his attention. For a moment he studied it as he slackened his pace. Then he stopped short, retraced his steps, crossed to the east side of the avenue, and, through the windows of a waiting cab, trained his gaze on Sherry's fashionable restaurant. In front of which the costly automobile stood. Dimly, through the filmy lace curtains, he saw the figures of those lingering over afternoon tea, with a few early diners. He could not distinguish their faces, but something in the bearing of a woman at the first window held his glance. Then a waiter, moving silently about the table, glanced to the curtains with his elbow, and in the momentary gap between the folds of film Britz saw the blonde beauty of Mrs. Missolner, and the clear-cut features of Curtis Griswold.

Britz settled himself to wait. The cabman, whose vehicle he was using as a redoubt, looked at him inquiringly, but the detective flashed out of his pocket a fat cigar with a scarlet-and-gold band, and in a moment he and the cabby were chatting amiably. The headquarters man had not gone far into discussion of the current political crisis, the door of the restaurant across the street was swung open by a boy in many buttons, and Mrs. Missolner appeared on the threshold. She was followed closely by Griswold, and after a moment's pause to glance at the heart of the much-buttoned youth, by a man the watching detective was somewhat surprised to see—Brixton Sands.

"Home," said Mrs. Missolner to her chauffeur. Britz could not hear the word, but he read it from her lips. He saw the widow step into her limousine, saw Sands and Griswold follow, saw the chauffeur throw his clutch, saw the big car glide swiftly south to wheel for a northward trip along the avenue. Before the automobile reached a turning point, the detective sprang into the cab, whispered an address to the driver, and added in a low tone:

"Double your fare for speed."

The cabman leaped his horse and, knowing his craft, threaded his way through the traffic so quickly that in a short time he was several blocks ahead of the limousine. All the way up the avenue the race continued, Britz well in the lead. At the Fifty-ninth street entrance, the automobile swung into the park, but the cabman urged his horse straight up Fifth avenue, and so great was the gain made by the short cut that a few blocks further north he dropped his fare in front of a mansion of imposing appearance, touched his hat in acknowledgment of a generous fee, and was bowling eastward, halfway to Madison avenue, when the Missolner car reappeared from the park's Seventy-second street gate.

"You at least can spare a minute of gossip," said Mrs. Missolner over her shoulder as she preceded Sands and Griswold into her library. "I'm anxious and elated affairs can wait a little while, and—oh!"

She stopped in the act of throwing ascendancy. Britz overlooked the air of superiority. He shook his head thoughtfully. There was inquiry in his eyes as he waited for Griswold's next words. "You'd starve to death in a studio," the clubman continued scornfully.

A crisp little laugh from Britz was the only reply. He crossed the floor and made a microscopic examination of the safe. Then he circled the room, tapping the walls again, moving pieces of furniture to look behind them, turning corners of the rug, and gazing reflectively at the ceiling. All the Indian servant, appeared noiselessly at the door, started slightly at the sight of the detective, and vanished as silently.

All that time, Curtis Griswold, having ripped off the sheet on which Britz had drawn the rude diagram, was sketching idly as he talked in an undertone to the widow. His words held her attention. She took no note of the detective's wandering, the heavy silence of Sands, the soundless appearance and disappearance of the Hindoo, but he paused at the threshold, and glanced quickly down the passage. There was no one in sight.

"I see you are an artist, Mr. Griswold," remarked the sleuth, his eyes on the paper under the clubman's pencil.

Griswold was genuinely surprised. For the first time, he seemed to become aware of the shape his idle tracing on the pad had taken. In the course of his brief chat with Mrs. Missolner, he had sketched clearly, accurately, artistically, not only the room, but the great safe at the further end—sketched them far better in those few minutes than Britz could have done in as many hours.

"Why, that's so," he said, holding up the drawing. Indifferently, his prowess with the pencil was an old story to the widow and his rival, Griswold, tossed the pad and pencil on the table and resumed his talk with Mrs. Missolner, turning the coldest of cold shoulders toward the sleuth.

But Britz was not to be shouldered aside so easily. He addressed himself toward the widow, withering her instant attention with his first query:

"Has Miss Holcomb ever told you much about her last year in Smith?" he asked.

Mrs. Missolner's eyebrows arched. "Nothing important enough to remember, Mr. Britz," she said, staring incredulously. The detective had almost promptly occupied the other end of the chair. Facing the beautiful widow, he ignored both Britz and Sands, and he threw into the glances he showered upon the woman all the caresses at his command.

Britz eyed Sands sharply before replying. He gripped his chin with thumb and finger, and seemed studying the big millionaire. As a matter of fact, he was watching Griswold. His gaze, even as it appeared focused most strongly on Sands, in reality was concentrated on the clubman, who shared the serpentine chair with the wealthy widow.

"I want a plan of the room," said Britz at length. "A sketch of the safe, too. One of my men was to have made draughts for me, but I had to send him out of town at short notice on another end of the case. So, and he smiled slowly at his poor workmanship, 'I'm doing the best I can.'"

"May I see what you have drawn?" asked Mrs. Missolner pleasantly. "Oh, Mr. Britz," she laughed, holding the paper at arm's length, "I'm afraid you'll never make an artist. I hope," she added hastily, "you have no professional pride on that point!"

"None whatever," returned the detective. He liked a woman with a sense of humor, and there was something about Mrs. Missolner that appealed to him anyway. "I told you I was merely a substitute."

Sands, towering above the widow on the hearth, shot a single, indifferent look at the drawing. Griswold's glance brushed it carelessly, but the widow's interest in it was echoed by him in so far that he took the diagram from her and examined it for a few seconds. Then, with a short, harsh laugh, he half turned to Britz, alternately bending and straightening the paper in his fingers.

"Ever hear of such a thing as perspective, detective?" he asked con-descendingly. Britz overlooked the air of superiority. He shook his head thoughtfully. There was inquiry in his eyes as he waited for Griswold's next words. "You'd starve to death in a studio," the clubman continued scornfully.

having moved, took another step. Those gray eyes of his shifted so rapidly they were upon the three others almost simultaneously. So gradually, so slowly did he approach the table that no one noticed his hand upon it. Resting that hand upon the edge, he went on:

"I am sorry you are not more minutely informed concerning Miss Holcomb's university days." Slowly his fingers extended until the tips rested on the tiny pad. "In a case like this, the smallest knowledge may be of value." Slowly, ever so slowly, the fingers contracted, drawing the pad with them. "Perhaps if you make an effort, you can recall something about the—prisoner's past, Mrs. Missolner?" The pad was in his hand. Deftly he tore off the top sheet and included it in his fingers. As the widow started to speak, and entirely unobserved by Griswold or Sands, the detective slipped that agile hand into his pocket. When the hand came out, it was empty.

"No," said the rich woman with more emphasis than would be expected of her large good nature. "I can recall nothing. I am sure there is nothing to recall. You must look elsewhere if you seek to forge links in a chain of evidence against Miss Holcomb. I have told you all I know—all I could possibly know."

"That being the case," said Britz briskly, "there is nothing more to say. With your permission, I will send a draughtsman to make plans of the room and diagrams of the safe." He hesitated. "I suppose these little art gems of mine," he resumed with a dry smile, "may as well meet the fate they deserve." With a quick movement, he threw all the sheets of paper on the table and the pad as well, into the heart of the fire.

"Guess I'll say 'Good-afternoon,'" and with a bow to Mrs. Missolner and the coolest of nods to the men, he left the room, the widow's detached "Good-afternoon, Mr. Britz," floating after him.

Was he mistaken, Britz asked himself as he walked quickly along the passage, or did he see a pair of eyes beneath a towering turban peer at him from the corner of a cross corridor? He made a mental note to have the Hindoo servant watched. More closely, with exasperating indifference, he tripped down the steps of the Missolner mansion, and hurried along a path in the park. Once in the shelter of the shadows, the detective quickened his pace, heading south.

SHE HAD CONSTANT PAIN

Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dorsetville, N.Y.—"Before I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered nearly all the time with headaches, backaches, and bearing down pains, and had a continuous pain in my left side. I tried to walk much, and my back was so weak that I was obliged to wear corsets all the time. But now I do not have any of these troubles. I have a fine strong baby daughter now, which I did not have before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. A. A. GILES, Route 44, Dorsetville, N.Y.

The above is one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond doubt that Lydia E. How to Have Red Lips!

The girl with red lips and pink cheeks may be thankful for both denote health—vigor, forward magnetic health, and while it may be impossible for some to attain owing to morbid states of health, yet a vast majority of seemingly healthy young women and men are almost colorless because of a lack of red blood corpuscles. When the blood is improved and enriched with these red corpuscles, the weight increases and a beautiful color appears at the cheeks, while the lips assume a healthy red color. Many physicians and beauty doctors prescribe three-grain hypochloride tablets which are said to invariably increase the red blood corpuscles after a course of treatment lasting several months. The nervous system and general health also improve rapidly. The best physicians and apothecary shops supply this tablet in sealed packages.

Her Impulsive Way

"Why, Alice, didn't you go out to lunch today?"

"No, I didn't." The stenographer did not look up from the crocheting. "and what's more, there'll be no rest for me noons, nights or Sundays, Caroline, until these table mats are done."

"I wasn't aware that you were in any immediate need of table mats," pursued the bookkeeper. "Isn't this rather sudden?"

"They aren't for me, worse luck. When I need household goods I'll let you all know, never fear. These mats are for another and they are long overdue." The stenographer laughed bitterly. "Behold in me a victim of the habit of promising in haste to repent when repentance is entirely useless."

"What?"

"I mean that I'm one of those unfortunate impulsive persons who are always gratuitously and recklessly offering to do things for people. Observe these mats. There was really no reason why I should undertake the manufacture of eighteen dollies, six of each of the three sizes, you know, for a person like Mrs. Corwine, but when she told me that Mr. Corwine had bought her a beautiful mahogany dining table I at once said, without considering the matter at all, automatically, you know, that I would make her a set of mats for it. She took me up with a jump and hoped I'd do the pineapple pattern. It's the most difficult stitch I know."

"Now she is probably wondering when I'm ever going to get them done. The truth is that I've only just been able to begin them, for I've been spending every spare minute for the last month on the border of French knots that in a moment of aberration I promised to embroider on Gertrude Lane's white marquisette dress. She bought it ready made and she thought it looked too plain, so, of course, I suggested the French dots and when she said that she didn't know how to make them I volunteered to do them for her."

"For four long weeks those knots have haunted me. Every evening that I've wished to read or play cards I've been obliged to stick to the dots, and the worst of it is that my offer to do them was made so casually that Gertrude has no realization of what a Herculean task they were. I wouldn't feel so sorry for myself as I do if I thought I were receiving proper credit for my labors."

"It's the same way with these dollies. Mrs. Corwine thinks that because I said in a light and airy way that I'd make them they're a mere amusement or pastime for me. Did you ever know such a noone as I am—to get myself into doing things and to hate myself for it? I'm one of those who jump in where angels fear to tread."

The bookkeeper laughed and Alice, continuing to crochet violently, continued.

"You ought to be thankful you haven't the habit. It gets one into all sorts of entanglements. A few weeks ago I met some suburban friends on the street. They appeared so pleased to see me that before I really thought what I was doing I asked them to come in town some day and have lunch with me, and I promised to let them know very soon just what day to come. That luncheon, for which I can neither afford the time nor the money and which wasn't in the least called for, has hung on my neck like a millstone. The thought of it has worried and depressed me ever since. The event comes tomorrow, and then, after these mats are done, I'm through! I shall not mortgage my time, money and industry any more. Hear my vow!"

"Yes, I hear it." The other young woman assumed an accusing air. "But what about my essay for the Young Women's league that I wanted you to type for me this week?"

"Oh, your essay—certainly I'll type, write that for you, dear. I can do it after hours just as well as not."

Caroline laughed derisively. "But that's different," protested Alice guiltily. "Typing for you is quite different from—"

"Yes, of course it's different, kiddo. Everything is different but you. You are just the same dear, reckless promiser as ever, despite your hard-boiled, strong-minded resolution. But, anyway, you can't type my essay for I've already hired it done."

"You mean thing! You know I should have loved to do it for you!"

"Talk about hopeless cases," laughed Caroline.

STONE FOUND IN THE COLUMBIA RIVER RIVALS ANCIENT PYRAMIDS IN AGE.
Hieroglyphics recently discovered on a huge stone in the Columbia River, which it is claimed were made over 3,000 years ago.

Portland, Ore.—Claiming that hieroglyphics recently discovered on a huge stone on the Columbia River are at most contemporaneous with the building of the pyramids of Egypt, Fred H. Saylor, of Portland, has aroused considerable interest in the discovery and the immense task of translating the mystic inscription has been placed in the city museum.

Mr. Saylor claims to translate the hieroglyphics saying they are in part astronomical records, while the remainder constitute a prophecy. He says the markings were made over 3,000 years ago and are similar in character to the hieroglyphics of the ancient Mayas in Central America, which were the most highly civilized of any of the prehistoric tribes inhabiting the western continent. Mr. Saylor's discovery, if it bears the close scrutiny of scientists, will be of great importance to students of archaeology.
